Before Magistrate H. W. Scott in city court Saturday afternoon Frank W. Batties, who gave his residence as Milford, Mass., pleaded guilty to a breach of the peace offense and paid a $10 fine with costs of $6.45 attached. It was alleged by the officers that Batties was the aggressor in a fracas which began in the Bolster block early Saturday morning and ended on North Main street some time before daylight. After listening to the grand juror's story of the fight, as it was given to him by the officers, Batties dissented from the officers' version to the extent of saying that he fought in self defense. The police are satisfied that others were implicated in the fight.

An enterprising Grant avenue Rhode Island Red hen hung up a record for that neighborhood Saturday when it deposited two eggs in its nest, within the space of a few minutes. A short time afterward she had occasion to visit the roost again and was agreeably surprised when "Little Rhody" as the prize hen is called, presented her a second egg. The owner of the bird thinks it must be trying to emulate the Kansas hen that lifted a mortgage on its master's house by laying three eggs a day.
